WHAT IS LEAD?

Lead is a poisonous metal that our bodies cannot use.

Where is lead found?

Lead can be found in air, soil, water and even inside homes.

What does lead do to the body?

There are no safe levels of lead. Lead stops good minerals (such as iron and calcium) from working well in the body. This can cause serious problems with the health of you and your family.

Who is hurt most?

Lead can affect anyone, but it hurts pregnant women and young children most. This is due to rapid growth. Children's bodies are also smaller, so are impacted more by the same amount of lead. Too much lead can cause problems with growth, hearing, speech, behavior and learning.

Get tested for lead exposure:

Help may vary by community and neighborhood. Contact your doctor, local WIC Clinic or your city's Health Department to find out more.

How do I prevent lead exposure?

See page 14 for more information on lead in paint, water and soil.

Healthy foods can help! Healthy foods can help stop the body from taking in ("absorbing") lead. Follow these tips:

- Feed your family regular meals and snacks. The body takes in lead faster if your stomach is empty.
- Serve foods that have the following nutrients: iron, calcium and vitamin C. These items help the body take in less lead. Look for the iron, calcium and vitamin C icons next to the recipes in this book!

Can food help if lead levels are already high?

Talk to your doctor.

Healthy foods are not likely to lower lead levels in the body. But they can help protect you and your family from taking in ("absorbing") more lead.

Healthy foods can help support your child's growth in other ways (reading, math and social skills). This may help reduce the impact of lead on your child's life.

PREVENTING LEAD FROM CAUSING HARM

The following are some brief tips for preventing lead from causing harm. Please refer to the links below for additional information.

PAINT

Lead paint is likely present in homes built before 1978. If you live in an older home, follow the safety tips below:

- > Fix peeling lead paint, following lead-safe practices.
  - > Use this: "Steps to Lead Safe Renovation, Repair and Painting" (EPA, 2011): <https://www.epa.gov/sites/production/files/documents/steps.pdf>
- > Wash dust off hands, toys, bottles, windows and floors.
- > Do not let your child eat or play near loose paint chips.

WATER

Lead is not present in the municipal water supply. However, lead may get into tap water in one of two ways:

- > Older plumbing in your home, which may have used lead solder (before 1986), and/or lead laterals (water service lines) to homes built before 1962.
- > In the City of Milwaukee, call 414-286-2830 to check if your home is connected to a lead lateral.

If you do not know, follow these safety practices:

- > Use a water filter certified to remove lead (look for "NSF/ANSI 53"). If you can't afford a filter, run tap water on cold for three minutes between uses.
- > Cook and drink only with filtered or cold tap water. This is especially important for women of childbearing age and children under 6 years old.

WATER (Continued)

- > Warm or hot water often contains much higher levels of lead.
- > Do not make infant formula with hot tap water
- > Boiling water does not remove lead.

SOIL

Homes built before 1978 may have elevated amounts of lead in the surrounding soil. Higher amounts of lead are commonly found within 15 feet of the home or garage. This is because lead-based paint may have flaked and washed off over the years. Once lead is in soil, it tends to stay in place.

Follow these safety practices:

- > Cover any bare soil in your yard (including garden paths) with mulch, wood chips, gravel, perennials or grass.
- > Avoid gardening within 15 feet of your home, garage or painted fences.
- > Wash hands thoroughly after gardening, using soap and water.
- > Hand sanitizer kills germs, but it does not remove lead!
- > Wash all toys and clothing thoroughly after playing in the yard or garden.
